Appendix 1: Processes to addresses Allegations and Complaints

Depending on the nature of the allegation, individuals may pursue the Alternative Dispute Resolution process prior to initiating a Formal Complaint.

Alternative Dispute Resolution (ADR) Process

1. Individuals with concerns or allegations of harassment or bullying should contact the Executive Director of Human Resources to explore and discuss alternative dispute resolution options with the goal being to resolve the conflict and/or concerning behaviours through facilitated discussion, collaboration and cooperation of all individuals involved. Some examples of ADR techniques are mediation, restorative justice and shuttle diplomacy. NWP supports and encourages employees to explore options for Alternative Dispute Resolution prior to proceeding with any formal, written complaint under this Policy.
2. In some cases, individuals may wish to pursue informal resolution options, which may include asking the individual who is engaging in the alleged behavior to stop, notifying a supervisor about the alleged conduct and requesting assistance in facilitating a resolution.
3. Where informal resolution or alternative dispute resolution is not appropriate, as determined by one or more of the individuals involved in the incident/concerns, or does not cause the alleged conduct to cease, individuals may make a formal complaint.

Formal Complaint Process

1. A formal complaint of harassment and/or bullying must be directed to the Executive Director of Human Resources. If the Executive Director of Human Resources is the subject of or otherwise involved with the conduct alleged in a complaint, then the complaint shall be directed to the President or their designate. If the President is the subject or otherwise involved with the conduct alleged in a complaint, then the complaint shall be directed to the Board Chair, who will consult with the Executive Director to select a third party to investigate.
2. Formal complaints must be reported immediately or as soon as reasonably practicable and in writing. Written complaints must provide detailed information about the alleged conduct, who is alleged to have engaged in it, witness(es) to the incident(s), supporting documentation and when and where it is alleged to have occurred.
3. All complaints made under this Policy must be made in good faith. If the investigator concludes that a complaint was made in bad faith, or is otherwise vexatious, the complainant may be subject to discipline.
 - a. The complainant shall not be subject to any reprisal, discipline or adverse treatment for making a complaint in good faith under this Policy and any such treatment may be the subject of a further complaint under this Policy.
 - b. Anyone who retaliates against an individual who makes a complaint under this Policy or against someone who participates in an investigation under this Policy will be subject to discipline.

Investigation of Formal Complaints

1. All formal complaints will be reviewed by Human Resources to determine whether ADR or an informal mechanism is available to the complainant and respondent, that if mutually agreed upon, could resolve the complaint or if, given the circumstances, the complaint is to be formally investigated.

2. Human Resources may engage an external investigator to conduct or assist with an investigation under this Policy.
3. Investigations conducted under this Policy will be conducted in a fair, respectful and timely manner by a neutral investigator who has no prior knowledge of or involvement with the conduct alleged in the complaint. Respondents shall be informed of the allegations against them and must be given the opportunity to respond to these allegations.
4. The purpose of the investigation is to gather information about the conduct alleged in the complaint and it is the role of the investigator to make factual findings regarding whether the alleged conduct occurred.
5. In the course of conducting an investigation, an investigator shall interview the complainant(s), the respondent(s) and any other employees or individuals whom the investigator believes to have direct knowledge of, or relevant information about, the conduct alleged in the complaint. The investigator may ask individuals who are interviewed to provide a written statement. While a complainant and/or respondent may suggest that the investigator interview a particular person, ultimately, it is the investigator, acting fairly and reasonably, who decides who will be interviewed for the purposes of completing the investigation.
6. Any employee who is asked to provide information to further an investigation under this Policy shall cooperate with the investigator ensuring they are honest, forthcoming and timely in their participation in the investigation process. An employee's failure to cooperate and/or participate in an honest and forthcoming manner may constitute just cause and potentially lead to discipline.
7. Any individual may be accompanied by a person of their choice during the investigation process.
8. A complainant or respondent who believes the investigation was not conducted fairly may ask the President, or their designate, to order a new investigation. The President or their designate, will review the complaint and the investigation report and may order a new investigation only if the President or their designate concludes that the investigation process was unfair or incomplete. The decision of the President or their designate is final.

Outcomes of Investigation

1. Once an investigation is complete, the investigator will prepare a written investigation report outlining the factual findings regarding the allegation(s) indicating whether the complaint is substantiated or unsubstantiated. The investigation report shall be provided to Human Resources.
2. If allegations of harassment, bullying or violence are found to have been unsubstantiated or the complaint was found to have been made in bad faith and/or was vexatious in nature, Human Resources, in conjunction with NWP leadership will review the investigation report and any other relevant information to determine whether disciplinary action against any employee is appropriate.
3. If allegations of harassment, bullying or violence are found to have been substantiated as a result of the investigation process, Human Resources, in may make recommendations regarding hazard assessment reviews, further education/training or any other corrective actions that may prevent future incidents of harassment, bullying and violence.

4. A summary of the investigation report, including the findings of whether the complaint was substantiated or unsubstantiated will be provided to the complainant, the respondent and, upon request by either of them, to their respective Associations/ Union(s).
