Course Description:

This course concentrates on the construction of sentences and paragraphs appropriate for formal essays. Written assignments offer reviews of the conventions of formal English grammar and the mechanics of good writing and editing. There will be discussions and analyses of readings. Students will write a minimum of twelve in-class compositions. In addition, research documentation will be provided.

Objectives:

The objective of formal compositions is to increase the student's abilities to develop and support a thesis for a particular audience. Students will organize sentences and paragraphs to achieve unity and coherence. The course will stress the need to create a clear and concise thesis statement. Students will also be assisted in developing a writing style appropriate to the context and audience.

Required Texts: Quick Access Reference for Writers (text and exercise booklet)
Optional Texts: English & Grammar Punctuation Guide
Essays & Term Papers Academic Outline

Term Work Value:

Out-of-class essays:
First essay: Jan. 27	800 word essay	10%
Second essay: Feb. 17	800 word essay	15%
Third essay: Mar. 28	800 word essay	30%
Mid term examination: Week of Feb. 18		15%
Final examination: Week of Apr. 21		20%
Participation		5%
*Initiative Mark (see next page)		5%

*The Initiative Mark is designed to encourage each student to initiate consultation with the instructor. Each student is expected to make at least two appointments during the semester. The student will then have the opportunity to go over draft assignments, seek extra resources or discuss on assignments/tests.

Class Participation:

Class participation grade is determined by evaluating a student's contribution to the classroom learning environment.

The criteria to assess "participation" are students' willingness and ability to:

- 1) attend classes
- 2) respond to questions
- 3) ask questions
- 4) participate in discussion

These criteria are not given separate grades, but a cumulative record of individual student contributions will be kept.

Good writing is good thinking expressed clearly.

Basic Expectations & Class Rules:

- 1) Attend all classes. Come prepared with assignments and readings completed. Be prepared to participate actively in your learning.
- 2) Essays may not be accepted after the due date unless prior arrangements have been made or compelling circumstances are demonstrated.
- 3) Essays will lose marks if they are significantly less or more than the required word length.
- 4) Students are required to make two copies of each of the three out-of-class essays.
- 5) Each student is responsible for any changes to this syllabus which may be announced when the student is not in class.
- 6) Please see the College Policy on "Plagiarism" under Student Conduct pg. 37. Plagiarism is never allowed. Plagiarism includes representing the ideas or words of another person as your own without proper acknowledgment and extends to the work of other students, the Internet, books, magazines, journals, TV shows, films, etc. This would not only include direct copying with citing the source, but paraphrasing as well.

Real writing is the decoding of the garble and static of inner speech, in an effort to make meaning personal, strong, connected and understandable to self [and your audience].
