COURSE
DESCRIPTION: Forest Management involves the use of forests to meet the objectives of landowners and society.
The student will learn to manipulate the forest to meet the multitude of needs and desires of individual landowners, society and/or caretakers.
Multiple-Use forestry and the environmental impacts of currently available management tools, techniques and strategies will be evaluated. The acquisition of personal oral and written communication skills will be stressed as well as the development of desirable employee habits and work ethics.
