

OBJECTIVES:

Your goal in this course is to gain practical experience by promoting the weekly physical activity of one individual aged 55+ or older. Thus the course is very eclectic and applied, offering you the opportunity to bring your professional skills and recent learning into play with one older client (volunteer). You are strongly encouraged to review and assemble applied materials from any of the certification courses that have brought you to this point.

A supervisor will stand by to assist as needed as you work through a dynamic and guided process of real-world lifestyle promotion. We start off the course looking at legal issues and risk management for professionals in this field. Once you are “out there” we encourage you to keep your supervisor on top of your experiences and allow them to assist in any way they can.

By interviewing, assessing, listening, transcribing, analyzing, understanding, asset mapping, prescribing, and monitoring, you will discover what older adults are doing (and not doing) in your community related to health and wellness through active living. In addition, you will learn more about the actual individual challenges and barriers of being an older person in your community by uncovering programs and resources to assist you and your client in making progress. And you might even change your client’s lifestyle for the better, earning their deep respect and friendship.

Students who successfully complete this course will be able to:

- Articulate the professional role of an Active Living Practitioner.
- Identify your own strengths and weaknesses as an Active Living Practitioner.
- Conduct an Older Adult Exercise Status Inventory
- Identify common legal and ethical risks to which an Active Living Practitioner will be exposed and appropriate mitigations.
- Articulate basic components of Behavioural Theory, particularly as it relates to behavioural change.
- Identify the primary barriers to active living.
- Develop appropriate strategies for resolving active living barriers.
- Conduct an intentional interview to gather Exercise Stage Readiness information.
- Identify an older adult's Exercise Stage Readiness.
- Appropriately identify a client's active living needs.
- Identify community active living resources appropriate to your client.
- Develop an active living prescription.
- Document client progress with appropriate diagnostic, recommendation and legal information.
- Actively participate in a supportive, professional learning community in a client oriented setting.
- Clearly evaluate and articulate the outcome of an active living prescription.
