School personnel complete a practicum evaluation form for each student they supervise.

College instructors evaluate students based on observation of strengths and needs in the field and review of field experiences and reflection as per the learning journal. The extent to which the student uses supervision to maximize learning will be taken into account in the instructor's evaluation. Students are expected to be prepared to address specific issues during instruction supervision visits and have learning journals up-to-date.

STUDENT RESPONSIBILITIES:

Integration Seminar is Mandatory. There are 5 classes; attendance at all seminars is required for credit.

Extenuating circumstances may be considered on an individual basis.

WHAT'S IN A SEMINAR?

So, what is a Seminar?

The Integration Seminar is the primary mode for exploring current issues in the field, discussing how what you are learning in classes is or is not implemented on your practicum site and dealing with the day to day issues of attending College. Instructors' announcements will also be made during this time.

How do I Prepare for a Seminar While on Practicum?

In terms of discussing your practicum, you will be expected to talk about what went well this week, as well as any difficulty you experienced. You will need to give this some thought before the actual class.

What and How do You Learn in a Seminar While on Practicum?

The focus of the Seminar is to integrate concepts covered in class, issues in the media with practicum experiences, while maintaining confidentiality. During the class you will tell your group about what went well that week and what didn't go so well. Your group will help you problem solve around any issues that may have occurred over the past week and discuss what you may have done differently.

As well, items that may be causing you concern in terms of attending college should be discussed with your group.

A Seminar is a class discussion and it definitely is not a time for a lecture from an expert who will tell the group what they should get from an article, or particular topic of discussion. Sometimes the Seminar will be focused and free-flowing. Sometimes it will be searching, questions, going deeper to understand ideas from articles, from others or from within yourself. Sometimes the group will come to some conclusions. Sometimes it will seem like a series of disconnected activities, like a popcorn popper, with ideas jumping around the table without clear connections. In either case, the Seminar is a place to discover new ideas, to re-look at old ideas, or to develop insightful connections among ideas.

Rules & Roles

The instructor's role in a Seminar is, at best, to be a model of an experienced learner; not to be the focus of attention, or the authority who will tell you what you should learn. Don't let the faculty member give a lecture in Seminar. Everyone must take responsibility for sharing ideas.

Participants must learn to actively listen to each other and speak openly to the whole group, not just to the leader. The group must learn to be sensitive to the needs of all. The natural talkers must discipline themselves in order to learn how to listen better. The quiet people must learn to be more assertive and to share their insights, even if they are not comfortable doing that. Everyone should speak during each Seminar.

Speak in turn and allow others to finish their thoughts. Do not interrupt one another. Silent periods are OK. Silence gives time to process thoughts, so try to become comfortable with it. Address an idea or argument by connecting it to what someone else has said. Summarize the point you are responding to, then provide your own idea.

Finally if things are not going well, it is our responsibility individually and collectively to put things right. Keep taking the pulse of the group and make adjustments so that everyone can have the opportunity to have a meaningful intellectual experience in Seminar. The best question to ask is not “how am I doing,” but rather “how is our Seminar going?”

Leaving the Seminar with more questions than you came with, or being somewhat confused and overwhelmed with new ideas, is a sign your Seminar is working. You will come to realize in seminar that a great article or topic of discussion is not something you read or share once and then feel satisfied you have learned all you can learn from it. Rather, a great article or idea is one which stimulates continuing curiosity and which demands from you reading or re-thinking and a continuing discussion of it - maybe for the rest of your life.

Hard work spotlights the character of people: some turn up their sleeves, some turn up their noses, and some don't turn up at all.
